Happy Thanksgiving!

Attached is the final manuscript with additional minor corrections (I checked to make sure the formatting didn't create double periods and removed a few).

Everything was uploaded on Tuesday after receiving your last corrections, and I did my final proof. All has been approved and is ready for Friday's launch. I don't anticipate that there will be any other changes other than a Foreword that may come after the launch. Please note that Foreword is not mandatory at all. It would simply be some "icing." As always, you too are welcome to bring forth any praises, endorsements in your sphere of contacts, and I will work them into the marketing.

After the public launch tomorrow, we will then go into another level of marketing for this book and the other past books, as well. I have compiled a list of those who are to receive AQSH for fulfillment. Our accountants are working on end-of-year financials. Please note also that our offices are closed and I will be away on holiday Dec. 13-Jan. 5th.

Have a great day of family and gratitude.

Best Regards,
Susan
